CHAU VAN KHAM, VIET NAM

LOCKED UP FOR HIS HUMAN RIGHTS WORK

Kham, a Vietnamese Australian, is a baker and enjoys reading, gardening, and doing charity work. Kham went to Viet Nam as a member of an organisation to peacefully “monitor the human rights situation” in the country, and instead was charged with “terrorism to oppose the government”. His family have grave concerns for his well being as he suffers from several different health problems, and Vietnamese prison conditions are notoriously harsh.

Tell Viet Nam to free Kham immediately and unconditionally and reunite him with family in Australia.
